LONDON VIEWS NEWS WITH ALARM.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, Nov. 25.—This morning's London daily papers display the Berlin announcement of an agreement prominently, all agreeing that it should be regarded with the greatest interest and that it amounts to the tantamount overthrow of the Ebert-Haase combination and the adoption of the Russian system.

It is admitted that the German Council has not developed the extravagance which brought disorder and anarchy in Russia, indicating that the council is not in the hands of the Bolsheviks.

Nevertheless, the Telegraph regards it as rather singular that Germany should adopt, even as a stop cap, a measure which was one of Lenin's original and most characteristic contributions to legislative conditions.

The Mail while pointing out the analogy to the developments in Russia, suggests the Berlin announcement is part of a "big bluff" aimed to persuade the allies government that old Germany is defunct.

At the evening services the Dixonian orchestra furnished some very fine music and there were vocal solos by Misses Marjorie Slothower and Margaret Morschultz.

FIREMAN KILLED IN PECULIAR WRECK AT ROUND GR. SATURDAY

J. L. Collier of Clinton, Ia., Buried Beneath Three Tons of Coal

TWO TRAINS WRECKED

Car Derailed in Front of A West Bound Engine As Trains Were Passing

J. L. Collier of Clinton, Ia., a fireman on a westbound Chicago & Northwestern extra freight train, was killed in a disastrous wreck at Round Grove at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, in which nineteen cars of two freight trains were piled up in an unusual manner.

The wreck was caused by the burning off of a journal on an eastbound freight, derailling a car just as a westbound freight train was passing. The derailed car swung to the southward, striking the engine of the westbound train, and in an instant cars and locomotive were piled in a head of debris over the right of way, the roadbed being torn up.

Buried Under Coal.

When the car in the eastbound train left the rails it struck the other engine on the side, running it over. The engineer was fortunately thrown clear of the wreckage, but Collier, his fireman, was buried beneath three tons of coal, over which the hundreds of gallons of water in the tender were thrown, and he was suffocated long before rescue crews could dig him out.

The wreck completely blocked both tracks until a late hour Sunday morning, despite the efforts of the Clinton, Nelson and West Chicago wrecking crews. Through trains were sent around the wreck via Fulton, Savanna and Forrester, while the Sterling passenger, when it arrived at Sterling at 7:30 Saturday evening, was immediately turned around and sent back to Chicago to do the work of No. 12, due here at 7:34 p. m.

A PROCLAMATION (By the Governor of Illinois)

CITIZENS OF ILLINOIS: I wish again to call your attention to the War Savings Stamps. A drive for meeting the quota of Illinois will begin on November twenty-eighth and continue to the end of the year. As an investment, the War Savings Stamps are superior to Liberty Bonds. They are issued in such amounts as to bring them within the reach of all. Through their purchase, there isn't a man, or woman, or child, in Illinois, who may not become a participant in the great war. So long as we shall live, our finest memory will be that we have done what we could toward the winning of this war. The little child of today will be happy in his old age, if he can recall that he spent his childish savings for War Savings Stamps.

Our conquering soldiers will soon be coming home. How can we welcome them fittingly if we have not done our utmost to help support them at home? How can we feel a sense of comradeship with them if we, safe at home, have not met gladly every war call made upon us?

Now is an opportunity for forming habits of thrift, which will better our condition all our lives. Thousands of our people a few years hence will have a competency which they can trace to the War Savings Stamps they purchase now. Will you be among this number?

Illinois has met uncomplainingly so far every draft made upon her, whether for money or men. Surely now, while we are rejoicing over the victories won on the battle-fronts, we shall not fail to "go over the top" at this late day and over-subscribe our quota of the War Savings Stamps.

FRANK O. LOWDEN.

FRIENDS DO HOMAGE TO MEMORY OF MISS RUTH SEAVEY, NURSE

Impressive Services Held For Woman Who Gave Life For Country

A WORTHY ADDRESS

Rev. E. C. Lumsden Spoke Very Highly of Lee Co. Woman's Fine Life

Beautiful and impressive memorial services were held at the Sugar Grove church Sunday afternoon in memory of the late Miss Ruth Seavey, who died in the service of her country. Rev. E. C. Lumsden, pastor of the Methodist church, delivered a most excellent address. There was a very large attendance. After the service the Sunday School children marched to the cemetery and decorated the grave of Nurse Seavey with carnations. This service was especially impressive. Rev. Mr. Lumsden offered a prayer at the grave after which taps were blown by Ned Smith, of Dixon.

The Woman's Relief Corps of Dixon sent a bouquet of beautiful flowers. During the church service the choir rendered special music.

Rev. Lumsden said in part:

"The war is over. No more the rattle of musketry and boom of cannon is heard. And now we say 'Peace.' We cannot imagine the agony, distress, devastation, cruelty and loss that have characterized this conflict. On Flanders field where poppies grow, there has been a red rain that will enrich and beautify even centuries. We rejoice today in devotion, unselfishness, patriotism and in wholesome Christian sacrifice.

"The price of any good thing seems to be the best anyone has. Today our world is safer than it has been for a long while. Germany's fleet is captured. Germany's army has gone home, chagrined at defeat. Germany's maniacal kaiser is a fugitive.

DIXON WON EASILY FROM PROPHETSTOWN

SATURDAY'S CONTEST TO UNION HIGH, 20 TO 6; AT DEKALB THURSDAY

Dixon Union High school football team won a decidedly easy victory at Prophetstown Saturday afternoon, where, minus the services of three of the aggregation's strongest men, they scored almost at will on the Prophetstown team, the final score being 20 to 6.

Turkey day promises the Dixon team its hardest game of the season, for on that day the players journey to DeKalb to meet the township high school bunch. DeKalb has been playing a stiff game this year and the locals realize they will have their work cut out for them. A large number of students of the local high school are planning to accompany the team to DeKalb.

FALSE ARREST IS BASIS FOR SUIT

As a consequence of the community war fund campaign of last summer, Sheriff John Ohmsgerdes, of Freeport, has been sued for $10,000 damages by former Sheriff J. Mason Fox, also of Freeport. Though only the praecipe has been filed, it is understood that false arrest is the charge, based upon the sheriff summoning Fox before the County Council of Defense to explain why he had not paid his proportion of the fund.

BOOM PERSHING FOR PRESIDENT OF U.S. IN 1920

The "Pershing Republican League" Incorporated in Columbus, O., Today

ONE IN EVERY STATE

Similar Organizations Will Be Formed In Every State, Promoters Say

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Columbus, O., Nov. 25.—A campaign for the election of Gen. John J. Pershing, commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, to the presidency of the United States in 1920, was formally launched in Ohio today by the incorporation of "The Pershing Republican League."

Former United States Senator Charles Dick of Akron and fourteen other prominent Republicans of Akron and Summit county are sponsors for the movement.

Mr. Dick's name leads the list of fifteen men who signed the articles of incorporation which were issued by the Secretary of State today.

The organization of the League will be completed at Akron tonight and it is said that Mr. Dick will probably be elected its president. Its purpose is to crystallize the already existing sentiment for Gen. Pershing as president in 1920 and to work for his nomination and election. Other leagues will be immediately organized in every state in the union.

"We do not know whether Gen. Pershing wants to be president or not," said Mr. Dick today, "but we know that there is a great sentiment for him, and we believe that if the sentiment is sufficient to nominate him the general will consider it his duty to accept the nomination."

TEN MILLION TONS OF SUPPLIES FOR THE A. E. F. BOUGHT THERE

European Purchasing Agency of American Army Performed Big Task

WAS A VITAL FACTOR

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Paris, Nov. 25.—Gen. Pershing in an order issued the day the armistice was signed stopping the wide purchase of supplies in Europe and providing for a speedy transition of that department to a peace basis. An officer who had much to do with that work sums it up as follows:

"The American Expeditionary Forces on Nov. 11, the day the armistice was declared, was travelling at full speed. When the American forces first landed in France there was a shortage of ocean tonnage and accordingly a search for material had to be conducted on this side with greatest possible speed. Agencies were established in all allied and neutral countries under the direction of the general purchasing agent and more than ten million tons of material for the A. E. F. were secured on this side of the ocean. They proved prime factors in the success of the American forces. To have transported these supplies from America would have taken 300 ships of 5,000 tons capacity each sixteen months. Apart from its food, the American army secured most of its supplies from European countries."

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

Mrs. Tyron Rosbrook has the pictures mentioned in the following letter written by Sec. DerKinderen and will be pleased to deliver them, but as many of the to-be-recipients are quite scattered, she wishes to inform them of what awaits them:

Romsey Hauts,

Oct. 31, 1918.

Mrs. Tyron Rosbrook,
Dixon, Ill.

Dear Mrs. Rosbrook:

I am enclosing some pictures of the Dixon boys, including your splendid son. They passed through our camp in England where I am stationed and we got together. I assure you it was as good as a visit home to meet the boys and we surely did visit. Sat up in my 6 by 9 room till the boys had to go home. I told them if the pictures were at all good, I would send them to home folks. I wonder if you would see to it that each of the following people got one of the pictures: Mrs. J. F. Vaughn, 515 Jackson Ave., Mrs. H. S. Nichols, corner Third and Galena; Mrs. Dolly Phillips, 1014 Fourth street; (For some reason not explained plained George Phillips did not appear in the picture); Mrs. W. D. Heckman, Franklin Grove, Box 40; W. A. Eater, Dixon, R. F. D. No. 1; Mrs. R. J. Hoyle, James McCaffrey, Walton, Box 12. The boys in the picture, besides John, are Fred Vaughn, H. S. Nichols, George Phillips, W. D. Heckman, Sgt. C. Eater, R. J. Hoyle and Sgt. McCaffrey. Guess I have one name too many, but one of these boys failed to get into the picture. As I said, we had a good visit. I happened to have some chocolate which the boys had not had so loaded them up with that. They were all looking fine and fit and everyone of you may well be proud of the boys. The picture was taken by our Y. M. C. A. tent. Hope you get all pictures and I thank you in advance for the favor of passing them on.

Sincerely yours,

J. DerKinderen, Am. Y. M. C. A.

A record for hospital building that is likely to last for a long time was made recently on work for the war department at Staten Island, N. Y. The building, a one-story frame structure with every modern convenience, was put up in just 10 hours and 23 minutes from the time work started, at seven o'clock in the morning. The hospital is 150 feet long and 24 feet wide, with a 10½-foot porch the entire length of the building on one side.

GRIP, INFLUENZA

Hamlin's Wizard Oil a Reliable, Antiseptic Preventive

During influenza epidemics spray the nose and throat several times a day with one part Wizard Oil and two parts water, using an atomizer. If you haven't an atomizer, gargle the throat and sniff the mixture up the nose. This treatment sets up an antiseptic wall of defense against "Flu" germs.

Chest colds and sore throat lead to grip. Stop them at once with Wizard Oil before they can develop into dangerous influenza.

This Year the Spirit of Thanksgiving Should Properly Be Filled With Praise.

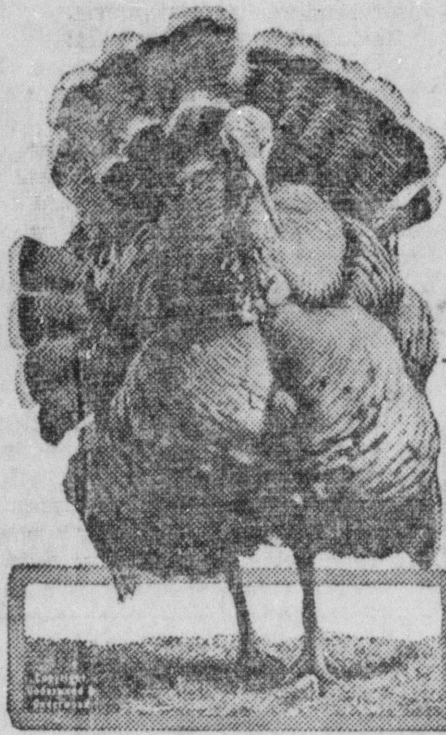

WHO that views the universe in its orderly movements and sees the mind of the Almighty in the fixed blessings of existence can doubt that out from the cataclysms of the world war the choice of blessing or cursing will work out in the victory of the good? The old cry, "Hath God forgotten to be gracious?" needs no longer be voiced. God has not forgotten to be gracious. So that, as the Americans assemble in their churches on the day set apart for expressing national gratitude, they will rejoice above all else that the nation of freedom has adopted as its motto: "Whom the Lord makes free is free indeed." Let them rejoice that America is bent upon proclaiming liberty to the entire bounds of the earth. The curse of autocracy, the curse of a blasphemous assumption that God is on the side of the strongest battalions, the curse of debauchery of human ideals and human aspirations, the curse of the establishment of force in the place of purity; of power in the place of peace—this is the cursing that is being wiped out in blood. The blessing of world peace and the prevalence of the spirit of brotherhood and of mutual advancement for the peoples—such is the peace that is being wrought out. The United States has placed its all on the altar, realizing that sacrifice is the noblest virtue of a nation. Hence, while exuberance may not abound, the spirit of thanksgiving is filled with praise over the mighty manner in which the mind of the Almighty is being made clear in the movements of the times; with the United States playing a leading part in its impressive unfolding.

No Time to Abandon Custom.

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. That custom we can follow now, even in the midst of the tragedy of a world shaken by war and immeasurable disaster, in the midst of sorrow and great peril.

O Bird of Joy

Mr. and Mrs. D. O'Hare, of Newton, Ia., and Mrs. Carl Engler, of Oklahoma City, are here to spend Thanksgiving at the Eugene Reuland home.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old St. Jacobs Liniment

Stop "dosing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Liniment" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Liniment" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sprains, etc. Get a 30 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Liniment" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

ADOPTED FRENCH BOY—

Members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Starks Friday for an all day work meeting. A scramble luncheon was served at noon, with twenty-four present. In the afternoon Miss Helen Brown, chairman of the committee, Fatherless Children of France urged the adoption of one of these children and the union responded, by adopting a boy. Eleven quilts, which is indeed a large amount of work to accomplish in one day, were completed for the Belgian children. The next work meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Watts, the date to be announced later.

O. E. S. CARD PARTY—

An early repetition of the O. E. S. card party, held Friday afternoon in Masonic hall, will be sought, so enjoyable did the affair prove. Progressive Five Hundred was played, with Mrs. Walter Greig recipient of a deck of cards as first prize and Clark Rickard the consolation prize, a soap cupid. Tea was served, Mrs. Dysart and Mrs. Theodore Wilson pouring. Fifty ladies participated in the happy affair.

W. O. M. L. TO MEET—

A regular meeting of the Women of Mooseheart Legion will be held tomorrow evening at Moose hall. At this meeting will be held the postponed election and all members are requested to be present.

HONORED CAPT. ROBBINS—

An enthusiastic meeting of the Minnie Bell Rebekah lodge, with a hearty welcome to Capt. C. A. Robbins, the newly chosen Grand Warden of the State Department, I. O. O. F., who is here on a furlough from Camp Merritt, N. J., was held Friday evening. Capt. Robbins gave an interesting account of the General Assembly of the Rebekah and I. O. O. F. lodges held at Springfield, to which Messrs. H. A. Brooks, A. L. Kaylor, L. P. Redfern, W. G. Kent, Lloyd Spencer, Frank Sproul, Wm. Suggitt, S. A. Bennett, the Misses Dolly Fauth, Edith Missman, Irene Nelson and Ella Kentner and Mrs. C. A. Robbins were sent as delegates.

Miss Ella Kentner who acted as secretary of the delegation, gave an interesting account of the Assembly in detail. Among the benevolences was a collection of $150 taken for the Children's and Old Folks' homes of the lodges to furnish additional goodies for the Thanksgiving dinner and to add to this the Bohemian lodge of Chicago, as a special thank-offering for the recent happenings which have placed their native land among the republics, added $95. A telegram of congratulation on victory won was sent to President Wilson, who sent, through his secretary, a telegram of appreciation in response. Gov. Lowden responded to greetings. Two ladies from the home were present to tell of their happy life at the home. These ladies were known by Mrs. O. B. Anderson when she and her husband had charge of the institution. A wreath used in the decorations at the Assembly was placed on the tomb of Lincoln at the close of the meeting. Mrs. Margaret Weldon, a past president, sang an original song very beautifully. Copies were sold and the fund resulting, $32.90, was presented to the Old Folks' Home to be used to plant a rose garden. $2,000 was expended during the year 1918 in improving the home. $200 was voted the United War Work fund and the district lodge added to this $25. In the children's home there are now 184 children. Sixty-eight boys have gone out from it into the service of the country. Illinois was the only jurisdiction in Odd Fellowship which presented Red Cross ambulances for overseas service and for this $8,774.85 was expended. Dixon lodge was fourth in contributing to this work. A picture of one of these ambulances, standing before a hospital in France, was thrown on the screen amid the cheers of the delegates.

Miss Kentner's report was received with applause. The business of the evening closed with the appropriating of $50 for the purchase of a Liberty bond. At the close the "Springfield Rooters" came in by twos, singing a parody to "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, Are Marching," as follows: Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the boys are marching.

The Kaiser stood right at the door. First we got his submarines, then we cracked him on the bean, Now there isn't any Kaiser any more. Another number which was received with equally hearty applause was a compliment to Capt. Robbins to the tune of "There's a Long, Long Trail."

There's a good old scout named Robbins With all the energy of youth, Who worked like — for Dixon lodge, And Friendship, Love and Truth; There's a short two years of waiting, Till his dreams will all come true, We're all so glad he's Grand Warden And he'll be Grand Master, too. The Boys are Marching," as follows: Three rousing cheers were given for apt. Robbins and the Springfield rooters.

At the close of all the jollity and as a climax, Mrs. M. D. Grimes, chairman of the executive committee, announced a prize of $3.00 to be given the one securing the most members to the lodge during December, with $2.00 as a second prize, and a fine for every member of 25 cents who did not secure a new member. All young ladies of 18, who otherwise meet the requirements of the lodge, are eligible to membership.

All wives, widows and sisters of members of the I. O. O. F. lodge are also eligible.

There are 808 Rebekah lodges in Illinois with an increase of 1496

BRIAN RECEIVES A MYSTERIOUS TELEPHONE MESSAGE

CHAPTER III

That night Ruth found herself comparing Brian with Mr. Mandel in a far different spirit than ever before. She had carried a hurt in her heart so long (because of Brian's intimacy with Mollie King, and his seeming determination to belittle her work, to find fault with her because of it—while he reaped as many of the benefits as she did) that Mandel's actions stood out in relief. And she now knew he cared for her.

As her employer's thoughtfulness, his kindness, appeared before her, so did Brian's seeming selfishness, his thoughtlessness, also stand out. Was she losing her love for Brian, and his place learning to love Mandel?

For the first time she wavered. She was not certain. "What an awful thing," she thought, "for me, for any woman, not to know whether she loves her husband or another man!" Why it was almost as if already she had been unfaithful, when in reality she never before had allowed a thought of loving anyone save her husband to enter her mind. Brian was late in coming home. When he did come he was absorbed, not talkative; evidently there was something on his mind.

"Shall we ask Kenyon and Clara in to play cards?" she asked, not entirely to please him, but because it would make her stop thinking.

"No! I don't want to play tonight, I'm not in the mood."

"Anything gone wrong?"

"No—why?"

"You are usually keen enough to play."

"That's no sign I am tonight."

"What shall we do, go to the movies?"

"No."

"To a play?"

"No."

"What is the matter, Brian? I know something has gone wrong."

"Can't a man want to stay quietly at home without something being wrong?"

"Not you. I never knew you to act like this. Do tell me what ails you."

"I told you—nothing! Now please let me read."

Ruth said nothing more, but she was watching Brian's face and saw that he was not reading or if he was, that he had no interest in what he read. Suddenly the telephone shrilled. She answered it before members during the past year, making the state second in the union in membership. New York was first with an increase of 2280. Ambitious that Illinois should be first in increase in membership before January 1, 1919, a membership campaign is being put on all over the state. Dixon's quota is one hundred.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

an ideal constructive tonic food, brings to the system elements easily assimilated and imparts strength and promotes normal growth. Scott's Emulsion builds up the weak and fortifies the strong. Scott & Bowne, Bloomington, N. J. 18-20

Brian could do so.

"Is Mr. Hackett there?" it was a woman's voice.

"Yes, would you like to speak to him—this is Mrs. Hackett."

"Hello, this is Hackett.—Oh, hello—no, not tonight.—No—I said next Friday—oh, yes—I won't forget—good night."

"Who was it, Brian?"

"A business call," he had resumed reading.

"But it was a woman."

"Women have business which has to be attended to occasionally."

There was nothing convincing about Brian's answer. Ruth was sure he was hiding something. What had he meant about next Friday—just a week hence. She was going on a short trip just until Saturday on that day could it be possible that Brian had made an engagement for next Friday, and whoever he had made it with had made the mistake, and had called him up to find fault because he had not kept his engagement?

The voice, too, she imagined sounded like Mollie King's. Yet she would be foolish to say so if it turned out not to be Mollie who had called him. No, she would say nothing. It was the same decision at which she invariably arrived. To say nothing because she might hurt Brian, or hurt herself in his eyes.

He had promised he wouldn't forget. That meant he would see who ever had called him, next Friday. Was there any way she could be sure that it was Mollie King?

Mandel's kindness recurred to her, all the more plainly because of this episode. Would he neglect her for another woman? Would he be as careless of her happiness as was Brian?

"Brian, aren't you going to tell me who telephoned? I am getting horribly jealous thinking about her."

She tried to speak carelessly, even laughed a little. Not yet would she let him know to what an extent her jealousy of Mollie King had driven her thoughts.

"What's that?" she knew he was sparring for time, that he had heard her.

"I asked if you weren't going to tell me who telephoned?"

"No—I am going to bed," and, stifling a prodigious yawn, he left the room.

How the union jack was ably de-

"Outside one of the biggest drapery shops of Paris two ladies handled a union jack which lay on a great pile of flags for sale and remarked in French on its cheapness. The salesman, unskilled in accents, was rash enough to explain the low price by saying that 'the union jack wasn't in season.' He received in reply the most eloquent discourse attainable by an indignant
Irishwoman of unblemished loyalty; and an Irish brogue speaking French most intrepid must quail. There is one Frenchman who will never again

FRIENDS DO HOMAGE TO MEMORY OF MISS RUTH SEAVEY, NURSE

itive from justice. This was God's war. The allies lined up with Christ ideals. The enemy was crosswise with God's purposes for humanity and now defeat is his punishment.

"But who won this victory? O, a lot of folk: Soldiers, sailors, doctors, lawyers, teachers, Y. M. C. A. works, Knights of Columbus, and nurses. Yes, all kinds of people who gave and prayed.

"Miss Seavey was well known to many of you. She went to school, church and Sunday school here. The fine lessons of life and patriotism were learned here. And in her country's need time she was willing to give the last measure of devotion. She was brave, devoted, uncomplaining, sacrificial, persistent and fully Christian. Today we honor her as we would honor the soldier who gave his life on the field of battle. Too much cannot be said in honor of those who, in our homeland, do their duty in a constructive way.

"We pay tribute today to a high-minded, pure-hearted, sincerely patriotic woman who gave her life for the country she loved. In years to come people will speak her name with reverence and even the memory of her life and work will give inspiration."

In conclusion, Rev. Lumsden told briefly the battle's story; that some cannot go to battle, but may be faithful at home. We all should do our very best, for our battle never ceases. The war over we must do our very best in reconstruction work. We must assume some definite responsibility. God rewards us no matter where we live so long as we are faithful. To be worthy of the good and true who have died for us let us without any complaining rededicate ourselves to our country's cause.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Wireless from M. Lefevre.

About four o'clock the same afternoon Mr. Germaine, the managing director of the Transatlantic Line, was sitting at his desk enjoying a late afternoon cigar.

He had just finished signing his mail when a clerk came in and laid on the desk before him two envelopes, which, from their external appearance, evidently contained wireless messages.

He took up the first and read it, then removed his glasses in a dazed sort of a way, wiped them carefully with his handkerchief, and put them on again. Then he read the message. It was dated that day, and had been sent from the steamship Richelieu half an hour earlier. It said:

Man claiming to be Purser George Vernon now on board Richelieu. Believe him to be an impostor. Am handling case as you requested.

(Signed) ETIENNE LEFEVRE.

The managing director sat back in his chair somewhat helplessly. Vernon not dead, after all! M. Lefevre on board the vessel, bound for France! It seemed incredible. He again polished his glasses, then blew his nose violently. After that, as he could think of nothing else to do, he proceeded to read the second telegram.

It also was from the steamship and read:

Purser George Vernon found on board to-day. Is weak from long confinement, but otherwise well. Tells strange story of assault and robbery by unknown men. Case being investigated by M. Lefevre, the prefect of police, who is now on board.

(Signed) EMILE BONNOT, Captain.

Mr. Germaine laid the two telegrams carefully on top of each other and pressed a button at the side of his desk.

"Is Mr. Barnes in his office?" he asked the boy who appeared in response to his summons. "If so, ask him to come here at once."

The boy withdrew. A few moments later Mr. Barnes came into the office. The managing director glanced up, then spoke.

"Barnes," he said, "you were at the pier this morning when the Richelieu sailed?"

"The detective seemed surprised by the question. 'Certainly, sir,' he said. 'I always am. Why?'

"Did you see M. Lefevre, the prefect of police, go aboard?"

"Yes, sir. Just at the last moment I was talking to him. I must say I was surprised when I saw he was going back to France. I asked him why he had decided to leave New York so soon, but he wouldn't tell me."

Mr. Germaine passed him the two messages. "If you will read these you will see that he had a very good reason," he remarked, with a short laugh. "A remarkable man—a very remarkable man. I doubt if there is his equal as a detective anywhere."

The detective gave a low whistle. "Well, this beats me!" he cried.

"I don't believe it! I can't believe it!" "I don't believe it!" growled Mr. Germaine. "Captain Bonnot has been made the victim of some clever rascal. You see what Lefevre says. I have every confidence in him."

Barnes scratched his head, very much perplexed. "The man we found dead in the hold was certainly Vernon. I knew him too well to be mistaken."

"Of course, and so did I. There's something mighty queer about this thing, but I don't doubt that M. Lefevre will find out the truth."

"Sure he will! A wonderful man, as you say, Mr. Germaine. I take off my hat to him every time, and I don't do that to many in this profession. Is there anything to be done at this end, sir? This fellow Hartmann is still at large. The police lost track of him last night, I hear."

"I did not know they were on his track."

"Yes. He was pointed out on Sixth Avenue last night, after trying to burglarize the Hotel Rochambeau. Had a woman with him, I understand. They both got away."

"Indeed. That's too bad. Why don't you get busy, Barnes, and see what you can do? It would be a great feather in your cap to locate the fellow, after both the police, and M. Lefevre as well, have failed to do so."

Barnes's face lighted up. "I believe I'll try it, sir, since you suggest it. I might turn the trick. You give me a frog's hand, of course?"

"Of course! See what you can do. And, Barnes, I wish you would run up to-night and tell Mr. Morris of this latest development. He is very deeply interested. I fancy he would like to know."

"I'll do it on my way home. Anything else, sir?"

"Nothing else just now. You may go."

"Yes, sir." The detective went out, a somewhat mystified look upon his face. "A remarkable man, this Lefevre," he muttered to himself as he left the room. "Just think of comparing him with a fellow like Duval. Ridiculous! They're not in the same class."

He saw Mr. Morris about seven o'clock. The managing director was he as much surprised at the news as Barnes had expected him to be.

"I judge the case is perfectly safe in M. Lefevre's hands," he remarked, with no great show of interest.

"Safe as a church," Barnes assented enthusiastically. "The fellow Lefevre's a great man. Great! Doesn't lose any time, believe me. Right on the job." He went away still voicing his enthusiasm.

Mr. Morris returned to his dinner smiling quietly to himself. Had Mr. Barnes been able to look into the financier's dining-room at that moment he would have beheld a sight that would no doubt have caused him a very great deal of surprise.

Mr. Morris sat at the head of the table, and the place opposite him was occupied by an elderly gentleman in evening clothes, whose gray hair and pointed mustache gave him a distinguished and rather a military appearance.

He and Mr. Morris were both laughing heartily.

"A remarkable fellow, this Lefevre," Mr. Morris was saying. "If you will permit me, monsieur, I will propose a toast." He lifted his glass. "To the health of that most able of detectives, M. Etienne Lefevre."

The elderly gentleman bowed and laughed. "I only hope, Mr. Morris," he said, as he put down his glass, "that he will succeed both in finding the murderer of M. Vernon and in recovering the missing legacy of that poor child, Mlle. Estelle Mercier."

"Amen," responded the financier. "And if he doesn't, I'll be hanged if I don't make it good to her myself."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Purser's Story.

The announcement, so calmly made by Captain Bonnot that the missing purser, whom every one supposed to be dead and buried, was alive and aboard the vessel at that moment, came as an absolute surprise to Richard Duval.

All his theories of the crime which had been committed aboard the Richelieu were based upon the assumption that the purser was dead.

This new development, so startling in its nature, left him for a few moments unable to speak. New theories of the case began to form themselves rapidly in his mind, only to be as rapidly discarded as he saw their inherent weakness. He resolved to wait until he had heard Vernon's story.

"The news has just been brought to me, monsieur," the captain went on, as the first officer left the room to fetch the ex-purser. "It seems that some of the men at work in the after-hold became alarmed because of a series of mysterious knocks which appeared to come from a small room at the lower deck used for the storage of signal rockets, lights and other explosives."

"The room is seldom entered except for the purpose of getting out material of this sort, for making signals of distress in case of accident. It has not been opened, so far as I know, for weeks."

"The men who heard the mysterious knocks were greatly frightened. You know how superstitious sailors are. One of them reported the matter to Mr. Beauregard, who at once went to the room and opened it."

"Inside Mr. Vernon was discovered lying on the floor. Near him was a jug which had contained water, but was then nearly empty, and the remains of the large tin of biscuit. Some other tins which had once contained potted meats also lay about the floor."

"Mr. Beauregard tells me that the man appears to be well, although somewhat weak from his long confinement. He came to me and reported the matter at once. That is all I know at the present time, but we will soon hear the whole story from Vernon himself."

"And in what capacity, Captain Bonnot," asked Duval, "do you wish me to be present at this interview? For many reasons I think it best that Mr. Vernon should not know my real identity."

"But—why not? He will be as much interested as you are in discovering who is responsible for this outrage."

"Undoubtedly. But I do not wish my reasons for being on board your ship to become generally known."

"I feel sure we can rely upon Mr. Vernon's discretion."

Duval considered the question for a moment. "Perhaps it may be just as well," he announced at length. "You may introduce me as M. Lefevre."

In the course of a few moments the first officer reappeared, accompanied by a tall, somewhat heavily built man with a dark mustache and a rather pale complexion.

Duval regarded him keenly as they were introduced. There was something about the man that seemed familiar to him, and yet he was unable to say just what it was.

He was dressed in a black sack suit very much wrinkled and soiled, but his face was freshly shaven. He appeared to be very weak and at once sank into a chair.

"M. Vernon," remarked Beauregard, as the purser sat down, "has been making himself a little more presentable."

"I see that you have just returned, monsieur," observed Duval pleasantly. "It must have been very refreshing after so long a time."

"It was indeed," said the purser. "I am greatly indebted to M. Beauregard for the use of his razor as well as for the clean linen he has been good enough to lend me. I was, I fear, in a frightful state." He gazed ruefully at his soiled and wrinkled clothes.

"Permit me to say," remarked Duval, studying the man's face carefully, "that you are strikingly like your brother, Mr. Charles Vernon, whom I had the pleasure of meeting on one occasion while in New York."

His words seemed to cause the purser the greatest surprise. "I do not understand you, monsieur," he said. "I have no brother—at least not in America."

"Indeed. Some one passed himself off in that capacity at the time of your supposed death. A man of much the same build and appearance as yourself, except that he had a short, curly, black beard."

Vernon started slightly. "It must have been he," he cried.

"Who?"

"Gentlemen"—the purser looked about him agitatedly—"it is true that I have a brother—a twin brother, in fact, whom I have not seen for years. I supposed him to be in France. Do not ask me to accuse him. He seemed on the point of breaking down."

"Tell us the whole story, monsieur," said Captain Bonnot kindly. "Naturally we are very deeply interested."

The purser cleared his throat and glanced about him in a somewhat confused way. "It is a queer story, gentlemen," he said. "Myself do not know what it means, but I will endeavor to give you the facts. Perhaps M. Lefevre"—he glanced at Duval and smiled—"may be able to throw some light upon it."

"I will do my best," replied the latter. "Go on."

"Well, gentlemen, the last thing that I remember on the night of this strange occurrence, which I judge to have been seven or eight days ago, was sitting in my office, about one o'clock, figuring up my accounts."

"About an hour before I recollect that some one passed the window and said good night, but I was so absorbed in my work that I did not glance up until he had gone by, so I could not see who it was."

"A little after one there came a tap upon my door. I remember feeling some surprise at this, because those desiring to see me usually present themselves at the office window."

"I put down my account-book and, rising, went to the door and threw it open."

"A man stood without—a short man of about thirty, with blond hair, whom I remembered at once as the young Swiss named Gunther, the attendant of Haussman, the rheumatic passenger from Brussels. He informed me that the latter wished to see me about placing in the safe a valuable piece of jewelry which he had forgotten up to now."

"The attendant informed me that Mr. Haussman was unable to come to me, that he would trust the jewels to no one but myself, and desired that I should come at once to his stateroom."

"I put away my account-books, locked up the safe, and accompanied Gunther to his cabin. I thought it queer at the time that Haussman had postponed placing his valuable in my hands until this hour of the night, but put it down to the eccentricities of a sick and crabbed old man."

"I reached the stateroom and entered. Gunther came in after me and closed the door. Haussman was lying on his berth fully dressed. He motioned for me to approach. I did so, when to my surprise he reached out his arms and grasped me by the throat, effectually preventing me from uttering a sound. At the same moment his companion attacked me from behind, seized my arms, drew them behind my back, and tied them with a piece of cord."

"They then gagged me and placed me on the lounge. Haussman proved to be no rheumatic, but a very powerful man of about my own age. It may have been my brother, gentlemen, I do not know. His beard, and the fact that I have not seen him for a long time, would have prevented me from knowing him. I do not wish to accuse my own flesh and blood, but I was struck at the time with his extraordinary resemblance to myself. Undoubtedly he was the one who appeared as my brother in New York."

"But the man who said he was Mr. Charles Vernon had a short, curly, black beard," remarked Duval, "while Haussman's was long and straight."

"It might readily have been false, monsieur," said Vernon, "as indeed may have been the larger one he wore when posing as Haussman. The last time I saw my brother he was smooth-shaven. I regret to say," he added hesitatingly, "that he has led a very wild life."

"But to go on with my story. This fellow at once possessed himself of my keys and disappeared from the stateroom for perhaps ten minutes. When he returned he carried with him a package, an envelope sealed with a large green seal, which I at once recognized as the one which had been placed in my care earlier in the day by one of the other passengers, an American by the name of Morris."

"Haussman and his companion busied themselves for some time with this package, but I could not see what they were doing with it. After a while they drew a steamer-trunk from under the berth and took from it two packages done up in brown paper. What they were I did not then know."

"It was then somewhat after two o'clock. I noticed that from time to time the man Gunther opened the stateroom door and peered into the corridor, as though to determine whether or not any of the watchmen were about."

SOLDIERS' LETTERS

ALBERT HAUTER WRITES.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hauter have received the following letter from their son:

France, Oct. 21.

Dear Folks:

Received your nice long letter from you today and also some Dixon papers and was awful glad to hear from you. I also got a letter from Mr. Villiger. The mail is coming fine now. Every time mail arrives here for the regiment there is some for me. This afternoon we were down to take a warm shower bath and on the way back I stopped at the Y. M. C. A. to write you this letter. There is nothing new to tell you, only that things are going fine and it looks somewhat brighter than it did some months ago. I am glad to hear that you folks had such a good grape and apple crop and would surely like to be there this winter to help you eat that jam and Liberty Kraut that you said you made.

The weather has been awful bad here of late. It rains all the time and a cold rain, too. Made it bad for all of us. We are getting an issue of rubber boots and overshoes and a leather jacket for this weather and I think we will get them very shortly. Just at present we are at a supposed rest camp, but we don't get much rest. But it could be worse than it is. We don't know how long it will be before we leave for the front again.

Not bragging any, folks, but our regiment took part in one of the most stubborn fights over here and that was in the Argonne forest region. I suppose you read about that drive by this time and that was where Horace Ort of Dixon was killed. We were on this particular front for over fifteen days and came through it very lucky and were finally relieved, so we are back at the rest camp for a time. Our regiment has been cited three times for our gallant work during shell fire, so I guess our regiment is doing her bit to help lick the Germans. We also took part in the big drive at St. Mihiel as you undoubtedly read about that, too, so you can see we were right in the midst of the stiff fighting and came out fine.

Well, folks, I am glad to hear that you are all well and I am feeling fine, but will surely be glad when this thing is through. I am glad Dad enjoyed his visit in Chicago.

Will close for this time, folks. Excuse the short letter. Will write more in the next letter. Hoping to hear from you soon.

Your loving son,

ALBERT.

FROM GEO. HENDRIX.

Corporal George Hendrix writes to his people, the Ralph Hendrix family:

With the A. E. F.,
Oct. 18, 1918.

Dear Folks:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am still well and feeling fine. Have not received any mail from the U. S. for some time, at least two months since I have heard a word. One thing that we look for is mail.

Have seen all of the big show from beginning to end and the Germans are getting a plenty every day. I have not seen any of the boys from home yet that I know.

It is raining here and cold and plenty of mud. A fellow needs hip boots if he lives in France. I don't know where they ever got the idea of "Sunny France."

Am going down town tonight and have some friend eggs for supper. They are $1.20 a dozen here. Pretty expensive eating, I'll admit, but can't be helped for a change.

One will admit the good old U. S. A. is a heaven and will all be glad when the day comes and we get back. As news is scarce and not much to tell, will close, hoping you are all well as myself.

Huns in The Blood

Enemies of your health enter your blood when you are constipated. They are the poisons created by fermenting food-waste and are as savage as any Hun. Carried by the blood to all parts of your body, they attack the organs and tissues and tax to the utmost the ability of your kidneys, lungs and skin pores to get rid of them.

When your blood is full of these poisons you are in no condition to fight off disease. Then colds have free access and the danger of influenza and pneumonia is overwhelming.

Protect yourself. Empty your bowels of food-waste. Your druggist has a pleasant-tasting new salts called SALINOS which is fully effective if taken in cold water. It will banish constipation, stop this seepage of poison into your blood and make you able to fight disease.

Get it today. Be safe! Take it first thing tomorrow morning.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to flush Kidneys—Splendid for system.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

The Union of the Coupon and the Water instantly makes the Bluing

DROP the coupon in the tub. The instant it touches the water the blue dissolves from the tape and distributes itself through the water. And it will be the right amount of blue. That feature has been figured out in our laboratory by chemists and artists. You don't have to use your own judgment. And you can't get too much or too little blue no matter how hard you might try.

THIS tape is a practical, scientific affair. It is designed to do away with guess work—damage to the clothes—streaky and spotted clothes—too much or too little blue.

IT isn't a liquid in a bottle, hence it can't spill. It isn't a powder, hence it can't fly and clog up in lumps. It is refined to a great degree and it can't leave any sediment. It saves waste. It saves the clothes and makes your bluing process absolutely sure and accurate. It won't soil your fingers or your clothes or anything it comes in contact with.

THERE is no bluing till the coupon strikes the water, and then there is the richest shade of blue you could possible ask.

JEFFERSON AND HIS AUTO.

Some time ago Mike Jefferson bought a new automobile. He couldn't run it very well, but of course the whole family and the near relatives wished to see how it would work as soon as possible. So Mike loaded the machine to capacity and started out on a country road. Everybody was delighted and Mike was proud of the fact that he could run the machine so long without getting into trouble. But after a while, all decided that it was getting late and about time to turn about for the homeward stretch. This was an unfortunate decision for Mr. Jefferson, for he found to his horror that he did not know how to turn the machine around on a country road. "Sorry. But I'll have to keep going until we come to a town," said Mike. "I know how to run around a block."

He kept on going for 14 miles before he found a town he could turn around in.

Need Help to Pass the Crisis Safely—Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Can Be Relied Upon.

Urbana, Ill.—"During Change of Life, in addition to its annoying symptoms, I had an attack of grippe which laid me in a weakened condition. I felt at times that I would never be well again. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it did for women passing through the Change of Life, so I told my doctor I would try it. DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the sweat pores do.

POINTS TO REMEMBER
WHEN BUYING REAL ESTATE

1st.—See that the neighborhood and surroundings are good, and that transportation to it is satisfactory.

2nd.—Insist that the seller furnish you with an Abstract of Title.

3rd.—If the seller can't furnish an abstract showing a good title, do not buy. Large investors, like Hetty Green and Silo Tompkins, require this, and you should insist upon receiving the same.

4th.—If you are "trading" properties, see that the other fellow hasn't inflated the price of his property so that he gets yours for nothing.

This is mighty important, for a couple of trades of this kind would put the other fellow in a gilded chariot and you in the County Home.

5th.—Have the property conveyed to yourself and wife by JOINT TENANCY DEED; then if either of you die, the survivor will own the property without the trouble and expense of going thru the Probate Court.

Go to any good lawyer and he will see to it that you receive the above, and that the hired girl doesn't get the property.

EUROPEAN MONARCHS FEARED U. S. EXAMPLE

Peace Table of 1815 Showed
They Were Afraid of the Spread Of Liberty

OUTLINED BY PASTOR

Rev. G. H. Ashworth, of Sycamore, Ill., delivered last evening at the People's church an address upon the "Peace Table of 1815." Through the discourse there ran an interpretation of religion, a philosophic understanding of history which brought into clearer relief the conflict between kings and the people, which has finally triumphed in democracy. The divine right of kings as a religious doctrine was portrayed as the parent of despotism in government, while the divinity of humanity was interpreted as the religious doctrine that is establishing a world democracy in which the rights of men and nations shall be respected.

No abstract can do justice to the volume of facts and bits of philosophy presented or the interest and enthusiasm which characterized the delivery of the discourse, but the following will indicate the movement of the speaker's thought.

The Holy Alliance.

Alexander I was upon the throne of Russia, Francis II on the throne of Austria and Frederick William III on the throne of Germany. Napoleon had been sent to St. Helena. Madame Krudener, a religious zealot, inspired the czar with an idea that if in sailing the political sea he would hoist a religious flag, he would safely reach the harbor of his selfish ambition, and the Holy Alliance was formed in Paris in 1814. The czar posed as an agent of God, but his egotism spoiled him. The purpose of the alliance, as set forth by him, was "to aid one another in conformity to Holy Scripture, on every occasion." It was a religious movement to establish a political brotherhood of sovereigns, pretending thereby to maintain peace and righteousness on earth. It sought to keep the then rulers upon their thrones and forever secure those and other thrones to their hereditary descendants, as plenipotentiaries of Providence. In plainer terms, the underlying determination back of the movement was to crush the desire for liberty and nip the flower of freedom in the bud. The monarchs who accepted the czar's Saviour were entered as members of Alexander's Holy Alliance. Nearly all of Europe signed blindly, selfishly, or through fear on the "dotted line" pointed out to them.

Isaiah and all the prophets before and since his day would say, Beware of any alliance that has for its object the triumph of material force; the continued control of might over right; the hypocritical extension of a friendly hand through which to gain selfish ends; and the maintenance of a balance of power among nations or individuals, seeking political or financial advantage for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many. Such doctrines, principles, and motives formed the door through which the people went to the Peace table of 1815, which was placed in Vienna and attended by over one hundred sovereigns or their representatives.

Feared America.

The following principles from the Holy Alliance were enunciated as a sort of invocation upon the peace table to be served to put the delegates in a frame of mind to discuss the issues of the Napoleonic wars:

1. The political order of the world was to be directed by the doctrines and practices of Christianity—of the czar's brand.

2. The orthodox religion must remain in the saddle to hold the proper check on liberalism in religion.

3. The balance of power in Europe must be maintained by perpetuating the existing dynasties.

4. No members of the Bonaparte family must ever occupy a European throne.

5. We must prepare to meet the influence of the American democracy for its contagion, already felt in France, threatens the sacred system of our monarchical governments.

NO COMMUNICATION

Geneva, Switzerland, Nov. 24.—(Havas)—All telegraphic communication between Germany and Switzerland has been interrupted. It is believed here that there has been some unusual occurrence in Germany to cause this interruption.

Army Prostrate.

Berne, Switzerland, Saturday, Nov. 23.—(Havas)—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, according to the semi-official Wolff agency, has telegraphed the Berlin government asserting categorically that the German army, because of the hard terms of the armistice and of the internal situation, is in no position to renew fighting. The German military leader added that even operations against the French army alone would be impossible.

NO MITIGATION OF ARMISTICE TERMS

MARSHAL FOCH WILL GIVE NO
HEED TO PROTESTS FROM GERMAN OFFICIALS.

Paris, Nov. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—It is declared that Marshal Foch, the allied commander in chief, has said he will give no heed to protests of the German armistice delegates made through communications from Foreign Minister Solf concerning the manner of carrying out the armistice. This reply doubtless will cover any further representations that may be made by the Germans.

The Matin states that it is able to inform Dr. Solf, the German foreign secretary, that the overtures he has inspired at The Hague are vain and that the United States and the allied governments will never modify the armistice clauses.

BOYS MUST SEND

Boys, members of the Boys' Working Reserve of Lee County, get busy and send your service certificates to County Superintendent L. W. Miller.

The United States Department of Labor has selected Wednesday, Nov. 27th, as "Badge Day," and if you desire any of the beautiful badges issued by the Department, you must see that the certificates of service are in the hands of Mr. Miller before that day. There are a few boys in the county who have not attended to this matter.

GERMANS SURRENDER
SUPER-SUBMARINES

Four of Twenty-Eight Sur-

Of Cruiser Type

YANK OFFICERS FREE

Harwich, Eng., Nov. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—In the presence of Sir Eric Geddes, first lord of the admiralty, twenty-eight more German U-boats surrendered today. This was the most imposing flotilla to haul down the German flag thus far. It included several very large submarines and four of the cruiser type, one being nearly 350 feet in length.

The noted cruiser submarine Deutschland U-153 was among the number. It carried two American officers who had been rescued from the American army cargo ship Ticonderoga, torpedoed on Sept. 30 last. The officers were taken to Kiel by the Deutschland, which was returning from a three months' cruise in American waters, and were landed today at Harwich.

Another surrendered boat was the U-139, which had just returned to a German port after a sixty-four days' cruise, commanded by Lieutenant Commander Arnaud de La Perriere, who in 1916 was awarded the Order Poud Le Merite for sinking 126 vessels. The U-139, however, was brought in by a first lieutenant, who explained that Perriere was too sad to undertake the duty.
